Paul G. Billings
Vice President, National Policy & Advocacy

Paul Billings is the Vice President, National Policy & Advocacy for the American Lung Association. In this capacity, he directs the Lung Association's asthma, lung cancer, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, clean air and tobacco control advocacy program. He is the lead lobbyist before the U.S. Congress on lung health issues. In addition, he supervises the Lung Association's state government relations program. Paul Billings has worked for the American Lung Association for seventeen years.

Previously, he directed grassroots activities for the National Clean Air Coalition and he was an associate with the FMR Group in Washington, D.C. A graduate of Bates College, he also attended Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland. With their two daughters, Elizabeth and Katie, Paul and his wife Teresa, a public school teacher, reside in Silver Spring, Maryland.
